
Wilson intervals describe individual process proportions only; they are not condition-difference tests.